Man, woman die after high speed 2-car chase

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

Two out-of-town residents were fatally injured Saturday in a multi- vehicle accident caused by a high-speed chase on Eureka Road that involved at least one Romulus motorist.

Dead are Mary Perkins, 63, of Belleville and Jeffrey Burnaine, 32, of Detroit.

According to Romulus Police Lt. Eric Painter, Burnaine was being chased in his 1993 Ford Escort by an unidentified 30-year-old Romulus motorist operating a 1992 Plymouth Colt.

Painter declined to identify the Romulus resident at this time, since charges could be pending as a result of the crash.

But according to the police report, the Romulus driver was chasing Mr. Burnaine east on Eureka, when they both came upon a slower driven car operated by Norrine Penix, 56, of Davis.

Both drivers sped past the Penix car on opposite sides of the vehicle and then tried to return to the same lane, unfortunately both at the same time.

The two cars collided and the Burnaine car went out of control and struck the Penix auto, Painter said. Mrs. Perkins, a passenger in the Penix car, was fatally injured as a result of that crash, as was Mr. Burnaine.

The accident occurred on Eureka road a half mile west of Middlebelt about 1:45 p.m. Saturday.

Traffic was tied up for several hours Saturday, observers said.

Painter said the investigation is continuing.

Williams leaves
McPharlin becomes principal

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

Merriman Elementary School Principal Andrea Williams has taken leave from her post and is being replaced by interim Principal Art McPharlin.

Williams, who was approved for the paid year leave last week by the school trustees, reportedly is going to use the time to pursue her educational administration doctoral degree at Wayne State University.

Asked when he first learned of Williams' definite departure plans "last month, last week or yesterday," Romulus School District's Human Resources Director Sam LaMonica last Tuesday said "yesterday."

But LaMonica said he and Williams had conducted some preliminary talks over the summer related to her possibly taking such an educational leave.

McPharlin, who currently had been serving as administrative assistant to Superintendent Dr. William Bedell, formerly was principal at Harrison and Hale Creek Elementary Schools.

Based on his past tenure as principal, observers said, a different tone of inter-actions within the school are sure to take place. "Watch and see" were the code words of their message.

One effort that will be stressed reportedly is a major effort to get parents re-involved with their children's school. That concept ties in strongly with the recently instituted educational compact started last month at registration time.

Bedell said McPharlin also will be attending regular school board meetings as in the past, in addition to serving as principal.

Williams has been a member of the Romulus administration for three and a half years. She began as Middle School principal for a year and a half and then served for two years at Merriman School. Prior to that she served in the Detroit School system.

Bedell praised Williams's efforts in hiking the students' Michigan Education Assessment Program (MEAP) test scores in recent years. He said she also had good rapport with most of the students.

Williams said it was a "hard decision" to go back to her doctoral studies full time, but found it very difficult to do those studies piece meal while directing Merriman School activities full time.

Williams said she enjoyed the support she received from her students and parents and found her time in Romulus to be rewarding professionally and personally.

The outgoing principal also expressed thanks to the school board trustees for granting her the opportunity to complete her doctoral studies.

Bedell said with Williams' decision to leave her post so early in the 1996-97 school year, hiring an outside educator for the principal post would be difficult thus the decision was made to place McPharlin back in the school situation.

McPharlin said he was "thrilled" with the opportunity, calling the role of principal "the best job in education today." He admitted that "I know things have changed quite a bit since I was principal."

Williams, who officially left her principal office last Friday, was earning $77,146.

Eighth graders hit bottom in science

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

Romulus eighth graders bombed out in the first statewide science proficiency tests, it was announced last week, but along with other student levels did competitively well in reading and writing portions of the tests.

Eighth graders in Romulus scored a 3.3 percent passage rate in science, while at the same time grabbing a 62.4 percentage level for writing.

Only four school districts had lower science rates at the eighth grade level, namely: Inkster, 3.2 percent; Westwood, 2 percent, Ecorse, 1.4 percent and Highland Park, zero percent.

The science test was unusually hard for many students in the Wayne County area, with Taylor schools registering only 9.5 percent. But some schools did remarkably well, such as Allen Park with 57.1 percent and Grosse Pointe with 53.2 percent.

Romulus Curriculum Director Thomas Dolan was philisophical about the scores stating "we are pretty confident that we know what we have to do."

Dolan pointed out the new educational initiatives are only a year old and thus he did not expect to see a repeat of these scores next year.

"We need to decide what we are doing wrong (particularly in the field of science) and correct it," Dolan observed.

Dolan said he is proud of

Energetic crusader seeks lights for capitol dome during holidays

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
MCN Managing Editor

Although "Hurricane Andrew" has been a familiar sight on the streets of Lansing, he just recently breezed into Western Wayne County in a whirlwind of enthusiasm for his plan to light the state capitol dome.

Andrew Anthos, dubbed Hurricane Andrew for his enthusiastic campaigning for his pet project, has collected some 25,000 signatures on petitions to light the dome.

Lansing residents recognize him as the man with the sign saying, "Honk to light the dome," and the local media issues "Anthos sightings."

Before explaining his project, he related that he is no stranger to Western Wayne County having lived in Inkster from 1942 to 1949 and on Dunn Road in Belleville for a period of time.

"Some people think that this is an obsession, but it is a dream," Anthos said. "It's a simple idea -- non-political, non-controversial, and it's not expensive. I want to light the state capitol dome in soft shades of red, white and blue -- the colors of the American flag -- on the eve of special holidays."

According to Anthos' plan, the dome would display the muted lighting on the Fourth of July, Memorial Day, Labor Day, President's Day and other patriotic holidays.

"It would be a beacon of light to look up to. It would honor those who gave their lives for their country, those who labored, the handicapped, the volunteers, the teachers and all Americans," Anthos said.

His dream began in 1985, two years before the state observed its 150th birthday, but he did not begin collecting signatures on his petitions and campaigning in earnest until 1987.

Early in his campaign, he drew a poster of the dome displaying colored lights James Blanchard, then governor, to sign the poster. Blanchard complied, giving Anthos the impression that he supported the idea, but then withdrew his support. Later, Gov. John Engler said Anthos' ideas was "interesting," but failed to support the idea.

One of Anthos' supporters was the late Ava Gardner whom he met in New York and visited on several occasions. A year before her death, the film star added her name to the list of dome-lighting supporters.

Anthos never accepts donations or contributions although he subsists on a modest disability payment. To those who attempt to hand money to him, Anthos firmly declines and suggests that they use a small bit of the money to send a letter to the governor supporting the dome- lighting project.

His goal is to have the dome-lighting approved before Memorial Day in 2000 to launch a "new century of hope and faith."

"Never has there been a time when we so needed to instill faith, courage and pride in people, and this is the way that we can do that by honoring all people in the great state of Michigan," Anthos said. "I won't give up. If I give up, it will let the people down who have supported my dream."

Light up Michigan is crusader's plea

I am campaigning to light the state capitol dome in Lansing in the soft, muted colors of the American flag on the nights of special American holidays such as Flag Day, the Fourth of July, Memorial Day, Labor Day and Veterans' Day as a tribute to the contributions and sacrifices the people of Michigan have made to this country.

I wish to honor those of every social, religious and ethnic group who created Michigan. I wish to honor those of Michigan who gave their lives for the protection of their state and their country – soldiers if all the wars, an police who shield us in the line of daily duty. I salute Michigan's churches, schools, doctors, farmers and our handicapped and homeless, whom Michigan will indeed care for. I salute our state government officials and members of our press who keep us informed on life on our state, as well as in the world around u.

I trust our citizens will also approve of the lighting of our state capitol dome in Lansing.

Council opposes stadium proposal

The Romulus City Council recently went on record in opposition to the county referendum this fall that would provide funding for a new Lions football stadium in Detroit.

The Lions currently play their home games at the Silverdome in Pontiac.

The motion opposing Proposal S was made by Councilman William Wadsworth and was supported by Councilman William Crova. All six council members in attendance voted in favor of the city's anti-tax resolution. Councilman Jimmie Raspberry was absent.

The county referendum if approved in November would add a tax on hotel/motel accomodations and rental car operations.

Wadsworth objected to the referendum, which he said should be called "Proposal S for stupid," because of its heavy impact on Romulus businesses.

"I think Romulus is No. 2 in hotel rooms in Wayne County," he said.

Councilman Michael Prybyla corrected Wadsworth by saying "latest reports say that Romulus is now No. 1 in hotel/motel room use."

Wadsworth said he would be opposed to the proposal even if the Lions had opted to relocate in Romulus.

Youths to see Repunzel play

Area youngsters will be encouraged to climb aboard a Romulus Recreation Department bus on Sept. 21 to see the play "Repunzel at the Northville Theatre.

Cost for the trip and play is $6 per ticket and reservations need to be made at the recreation center by Sept. 19. The bus will leave at 1:15 p.m. and return at 4:30 p.m.

Gondek heads policy committee

School Trustee Judi Gondek has been named chairperson of the district's policy committee for the current school year.

192 school desks are purchased

The Romulus School Board has approved the purchase of 117 double school desks and 75 single school desks for Cory Elementary School.

Also approved for purchase were 250 chairs and six tables. The cost for the approved furniture items, the board agreed to purchase was $18,538.

Romulus schools awarded $40,791 to fight drug use.

With drug use nationally on a three-year spiral, it was announced that a grant of $40,791 for drug prevention has been given to the Romulus Community Schools.

State Sen. Loren Bennett (R-Canton) announced the gift last week via the Safe and Drug-Free Schools.

"Most people don't realize that the good new has ended," Bennett said, and that "within the last three years that drug use among teens ages 12 to 17 has climbed nearly 70 percent."

Rotarian volunteers
Build ramp for 13-year-old student

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

A dedicated band of Romulus Rotarians teamed up in the rain Saturday to begin construction of a large ramp for a 13-year-old boy, who spends hours in a wheelchair in his Rudgate subdivision home.

The ramp makes it easier for young Calvin Wolf to exit his Romulus home as he travels to and from classes at Marshall Middle School in Westland.

Romulus Rotary Club member Ron Hopson said he was contacted several months ago by a Lutheran Social Service spokesperson and asked if the local Rotarians could help the family of Kevin and Kim Wolfe.

"It sounded more like they were looking for a cash donation," Hopson said, "but I told her I would take it to the Rotary Board of Directors to see if they were willing to assume responsibility for the entire project."

The board members agreed to furnish both the materials and labor for the extensive project that would cost in the range of $3,000-$4,000, Hopson said.

Mayor William Oakley, who has served as a construction executive for many years, supplied the leadership for the volunteer project. Oakley on Monday revealed he also brought on two carpenters to assist the dozen or more Rotary members last Saturday.

Rotarian John Brimble, owner of the Capt. Nemo restaurants in Romulus and Wayne, supplied free sandwiches and drinks for the volunteers, so they wouldn't have to waste time leaving the project area for lunch.

"We have the project 80 percent done," Hopson said Monday, "and weather permitting we will return soon to complete it." Needed to be added are safety railings and caps for the wooden ramp, Hopson said.

The work crew, who battled the rain and cool breezes last weekend, were heartened when Kevin brought out his son to watch the work project transpire.

Calvin, dressed in warm clothes and wrapped in a sleeping bag, was placed under a large umbrella by his dad. Several times during the day the workers called out to Calvin and asked him "How are we doing?"

Calvin, who is unable to speak, would raise his arm and flash a "thumbs-up" symbol, Hopson explained.

Masked bandits rob Romulus party store

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

Two masked bandits armed with handguns robbed the Super Y Party Store on Middlebelt road on Saturday night, taking over $5,000 in cash and multiple lottery tickets.

Lt. David Early, head of the Romulus Police Department's Investigative Services Unit, said the bandits forced the employees and staff members to lie on the floor, while the holdup was taking place.

One bandit was armed with a black pistol and the other with a silver semi-automatic handgun. Both men wore ski masks.

The pair reportedly fled in a late model grey/black vehicle.

In other police cases, Early reports action is being pressed against a theft suspect who allegedly pawned a Romulus man's tools after stealing them earlier.

•On Sept. 12 a suspect reportedly walked into the Wink Market on Inkster road and asked to cash an insurance check made out for over $1,000.

Victim asked the suspect to place his social security and driver's license numbers on the back of the check. But when the victim's attention was diverted to another customer, the suspect reportedly fled with both the cash and check.

•A red-grey power saw in a red plastic case and surveying level collectively valued at more than $12,000 were stolen from the G.M. Powertrain facility on Ecorse road on Sept. 13. Items were taken from a tool storage crib.

•A black laptop computer, printer, cellular car phone and radar detector, all valued at about $2,000, were reported stolen from a 96 Ford van parked on Sept. 13 at the Fairfield Hotel on Flynn drive.

•An Inkster road woman's purse was reported stolen on Sept. 13 after she let a youth in her home for a drink after he worked on her roof.

•An 18-can case of Busch beer was stolen from the Metro Dairy Bar on Ecorse road by three young males on Sept. 14. Trio escaped in a dark colored Mercury Cougar.

•A 22 calibre handgun reported was stolen from a Julie street home on Sept. 14.

•A bike rider reportedly pedaled up to a victim stopped at the H and S Gas Station on Van Born and offered to sell motorist drugs on Sept. 15. Suspect then reportedly reached into victim's car and stole a cellular phone and fled toward Wayne.

•A thief reportedly threw a cinder block through a double paned window at the Coleman Center on Beverly road and then stole a computer and pay phone on Sept. 16.

Clinton may visit airport in October

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

President Clinton could return to Wayne County next month, if a groundbreaking ceremony for the projected midfield terminal at Detroit Metro Airport in Romulus can be arranged by then.

That information was passed on to members of the Greater Romulus Chamber of Commerce Tuesday by Michael Conway, airport spokesman. Conway spoke on behalf of the previously announced speaker Metro Airport Director Robert Braun, who was suddenly sent to Minneapolis, headquarters for Northwest Airlines, in an effort to speed up negotiations for the planned terminal.

"Clinton had expressed interest earlier in coming to Metro Airport in October when a groundbreaking would be conducted," Conway said.

The airport spokesman praised the Clinton administration for promising up to $150 million in federal aid for such a project earlier this year. It is hoped that the massive terminal would be completed by the year 2000.

Conway said the current international terminal is beginning to look a little worn following 35 months of racord breaking traffic there and thus $60 million in interim improvements were being planned pending the opening of the new terminal.

Conway quoted the results of a recent AAA survey that showed that 63 percent of those questioned felt the image of southeast Michigan is highly impacted by persons views of Metro Airport.

Wayne County Commissioner Bruce Patterson (R-Canton) reminded those in attendance that the county commissioners still have not been given the final picture of the proposed terminal plan. He expressed hope that such information would reach them this week, but some county actions were delayed this week because of Clinton's visit to Westland on Tuesday.

Both Clinton and Republican Presidential candidate Robert Dole realize that capturing Michigan on election day is vital to their causes and thus pressure is reportedly being placed on Northwest officials to agree to a terminal package prior to the November election.

Wayne County Executive Ed McNamara reportedly has warned Northwest officials that Clinton could withdraw that $150 million pledge if the groundbreaking is held after election day 1996.

Dolan was pleased the students showed good comparison test scores with districts such as Taylor, particularly in writing and reading skills (which are two of the basic three R's in education).

Car damages woman's legs

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

A 39-year-old Westland woman, who was making a phone call outside a Romulus gas station, suffered serious leg injuries when she was crushed by a car that reportedly went out of control on Friday the 13th.

Romulus Detective Lt. David Early reported the victim, Mary Gaines of Westland, was hit by a car operated by an unnamed Romulus driver, who then fled from the scene.

Early said Gaines has undergone surgery in an attempt to save her legs at St. Joseph's Hospital in Ann Arbor.

According to police reports, the Romulus driver was arguing with his girl friend in a gas station on Middlebelt road, when the woman fled with her two children to the Shell Gas Station at 29351 Van Born.

As soon as the Romulus resident realized the woman was gone, he jumped into his car and chased after her across the street. He now claims that his car brakes failed and thus the vehicle struck Gaines at the outdoor phone location, Early said.

Police reports state that the force of the crash pinned Gaines between the car and gas station building.

The unnamed Romulus driver faces domestic violence charges involving his girl friend, as well as charges relating to hitting Gaines and fleeing the scene.

Col. Harvey to retire

Lt. Col. Clarence Harvey, former head of the Salvation Army's Southeast Michigan Divisional Headquarters in Southfield, is expected to retire from the Christian based group in November.

Harvey is best known in western Wayne County for his personal drive to create a new Salvation Army Corps in the Wayne-Westland area.

The corps program in the Wayne-Westland area was actually sponsored by the Dearborn Heights Salvation Army Corps, which set up the first facility in the old Norwayne shopping center across the street from the current $1 million Venoy road Salvation Army building.

The unit known as the Norwayne Salvation Army services residents in Wayne, Westland and Romulus.

An official announcement on Harvey's retirement is expected to be made in the next week or two.

Romulus High students honored

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

A pair of highly motivated Romulus High School students recently were awarded a one month involvement at High Scope Institute for IDEAS in Clinton.

The students, Ameerah Khalifa and Yoruba Mitchell, were given the honor because of their commitment to school academics and their involvement with the school's Project SERVE program.

Kathy Hurst, Project SERVE coordinator, said Khalifa and Mitchell had the opportunity to learn in a way that was somewhat different than the traditional classroom.

"Each day they made choices about the subjects they would explore, the sports they would play and the projects they would work on," Hurst said.

They learned songs and dances and made many new friends from all over the world, she continued.

The two students worked to complete five outcomes that would increase student initiative, develop an appreciation of diversity, explore educational and career possibilities, increase motivation for achievement and develop a commitment for community service.

Khalifa completed one of her goals by writing an essay and Mitchell worked on a Habitat for Humanity project in Ypsilanti.

Both were highly praised by their peers and Hurst upon their return to Romulus earlier this month.

Hurst said "we look forward to them taking a leading role in programs both at the school and in the community. They are the kind of leaders who will make Romulus an even better place to live."

Business or organizational leaders wishing to sponsor youth such as Khalifa and Mitchell in August 1997 are urged to contact Hurst for further information at 941-2170, extension 809.

Tigers' 'Bird' writes book

It was 20 years ago that Mark "The Bird" Fidrych exploded on to the baseball scene, causing one of the most remarkable sports stories of modern history.

Even now, two decades later, it's still overwhelming to think about the nation-wide sensation caused by the rookie pitcher who looked more like Sesame Street's Big Bird character than he did the scourge of American League hitters.

With his long, blond, curly locks of hair and a boyish innocence that ignored all the trappings of big league baseball, Fidrych immediately became the talk of the nation.

All Fidrych did was talk to the ball and convince it to flutter around enemy bats as baseball fans everywhere responded to his exuberant innocence that refused to be bottled.

Now, 20 years later, Fidrych is celebrating that dazzling year he made baseball stop, look and listen. The Bird has combined with Rosemary Lonborg, wife of former Cy Young Award winner Jim Lonborg, to produce a coloring book that captures the essence of that magical season.

"Maybe a lot of these little kids never even heard of me," Fidrych said. "But mom and pop can show them through the pictures some of the things that happened that summer. Rosemary is interested in writing books for kids and I just thought this was a neat idea."

> "Maybe a lot of these little kids never even heard of me."
> - Mark Fidrych

The Bird will be back in Detroit to introduce the book the week of Sept. 23. He will distribute books free to the children at Detroit's Henry Ford Hospital.

In addition, he will sign books before the Tiger games of Sept. 23, 24 and 25 at Sportsland USA, 1444 Michigan Ave. at Trumbull. The Bird will sign the books from 5 p.m. until game time on Monday and Tuesday, and from 11 a.m. until game time Wednesday. The book sale price is $4.95.

For more information regarding the signing session, please contact Neil Heffernan at (313) 962-7452. For other information, and Fidrych interviews, please contact Dan Ewald at (810) 828-9662.

Mayor proposes inequitable tax investigation

By KIMBERLY WOLOSKIE
MCN Staff Writer

Spearheading the initiative to have the county-wide taxation structure investigated is Westland's Mayor Robert J. Thomas, who addressed the Conference of Western Wayne community leaders Friday.

Thomas said the rising amount of tax money "shelled out" by Western Wayne county communities, including Westland, accounted for more than 52 percent of the money generated by a new tax.

"I think we need to study all the alternatives to this issue," said Thomas. "I don't know if it's a feasible thing to do and it might take a long time and a lot of money but I think its an unfair representation when our communities only get a fraction of the money raised county-wide."

Thomas told his fellow Conference of Western Wayne (CWW) board members this motion to devise a more equitable county-wide tax was not a charge to the 18 CWW communities to stand up and secede from Wayne County.

"This is not the suburbs versus the city of Detroit and this is certainly not a race issue," said Thomas. "It's an unfair taxation issue. We need to put our heads together and come up with a solution."

In a letter, addressed to CWW Executive Director Dan Gilmartin, the Westland mayor states the parks millage was "a perfect example" of the problem, noting his community's voters turned down the proposal by a two-to-one margin, yet it passed county-wide.

"Westland voters will send over $300,000 to the County Parks Department with no guarantee of any direct benefit from that money," stated Thomas. "If the County so desired, it could spend all of the money collected in one community or several. It would be totally up to them."

Some of the possible solutions Thomas proposed included:

- Changing the County Charter to allow more representation from the suburban communities on the County Commission
- Require a two-thirds vote to either place a ballot proposal before voters or to pass a county-wide tax proposal
- CWW communities seceding from Wayne County to form a new county or to join another existing county

Mike Duggan, deputy county executive, said there was very little language in Mayor Thomas' letter he disagreed with including the underlying problem regarding the unequal tax issue.

"We're committed to solving the issue and getting it on the ballot to amend the charter," said Duggan. "It's unfortunate that it's as much of a political problem for us as it is for you."

Thomas proposed a round table discussion between himself, Duggan and several other CWW members be formed to address the issue. A resolution, read by Gilmartin, charged the executive director to research the feasibility of solving this inequitable tax issue. Gilmartin said he would report his findings to the membership at the October CWW meeting.

The 18 member board unanimously approved the resolution.

Safety first
Auxiliary presents classes for boaters

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
MCN Managing Editor

As the boating season draws to a close, operators of sail and power crafts can look back on an extraordinary period on the water.

"This was one of the best boating seasons in a long time with good weather on most of the weekends," said Rick Wade of Belleville. "Now, that the season is almost over, it's a good time for boaters who haven't already taken a safety course to do so."

Wade, a boating enthusiast, is a member of U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary and serves as information officer for his Canton-based unit. He was the guest speaker at the September meeting of the Huron Valley Conservation Association.

"There's a link between boating and conservation," he told the group. "One of the greatest causes of erosion on our lakes and rivers is from the wakes of boats which do not comply with posted wake regulations."

Wade said that currently there is no license or "driver's test" for boaters. Anyone who has the money to buy a boat, can do so and put it in the water without any knowledge of boating safety, piloting, equipment or regulations.

"It's shocking to think of how many people purchase a boat and take it out on the water -- even the Great Lakes -- without any knowledge of safety rules," said Wade. "I see boats out on the lakes that are accidents waiting to happen.

> If we have enough interest in the Belleville area, we could also schedule a class there.
> - Rick Wade

Some time in the future, I think there will be a licensing of boaters, just like motorists."

One of the main functions of the auxiliary is to perform free vessel examinations which inform boaters if their vessels are in compliance with safety regulations.

In addition, each flotilla (local unit) must present a boating safety class annually.

"Because many of our members live in Canton, we hold our classes in Plymouth-Canton High School each January," Wade said. "It's a good time for a class, because everyone is thinking about the boating season ahead, but we can't get out on the water."

The class is free, but participants must purchase a workbook for the 13-week class.

"If we have enough interest in the Belleville area, we could also schedule a class there," he said.

Wade said safety is his primary concern.

"I take my family out on the water, and I'm responsible for their safety. The life I save may be my own or the life of someone in my family," Wade said.

Wade noted that Michigan has more than 850,000 boaters, which is the largest number in any of the 48 contiguous states.

Soil bacteria poisoned ducks

A bacterium occurring naturally in the Rouge River soil is responsible for the deaths of ducks in Westland and Dearborn, not the waters of the river.

Tests conducted by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR), revealed that the warm weather and low-water conditions stimulated the bacterium (clostridium botulinum) to release a toxin in river sediments.

Ducks dabbing in the river waters for insects and plants ingested the toxin from the soil and became infected.

Some 200 mallard deaths have been reported by Westland animal control officers this summer. One hundred more dead and injured birds have been reported at other area sites.

A similar outbreak of botulism caused the death of dozens of ducks in Belleville Lake several years ago.

Outbreaks of botulism in birds occur in the state almost every year, often in August during a period of extended heat and little rain.

Botulism's symptoms include paralysis, dropping head and wings and lethargy. If the ducks do not succumb to the disease in four to 12 hours, they have a chance for survival. Infected ducks are treated with antibiotics, fresh water and rest.

State health officials said the botulism does not pose a risk to humans.

Mike's musings

Mike Wilcox

Craig Lindberg had every right to be a nervous wreck. The 31 year-old William D. Ford Voc Tech student was about to describe his CAM project to President Bill Clinton. What he said and how he said it would be projected on millions of television screens tuned to the nightly news Tuesday.

Wheelchair bound thanks to a spinal cord injury suffered in a 1994 Livonia automobile accident, Lindberg anxiously awaited Clinton's arrival to the Voc Tech classroom with twelve mates, his teacher Todd Hoag, six secret service officers and a press gallery numbering close to 75. This was to be the first leg of a quick trip to Westland that would end with a Clinton speech on the Westland John Glenn football field in front of 10,000 people.

Craig's concern, however was not meeting the President, but whether his Computer Numerical Control, Vertical Milling machine would work. On three separate occasions before Clinton's arrival, Lindberg expressed this concern. Here's a guy who has to explain a complicated process to the top dog, and he's more concerned about the machine he's demonstrating.

He had no need to worry. When Clinton came marching in he greeted Lindberg and then listened intently as Craig eloquently explained the process and demonstrated the machine. When a plastic key chain was presented to Clinton as the finished product, the President heartily laughed and expressed, "I like that!"

Andy Warhol always claimed each of us has our fifteen minutes of fame. Craig Lindberg's day was September 17, and it was wonderful to see this Westlander do so well in the spotlight.

Observations worth noting:

· Superintendent Duane Moore and staff and Mayor Robert Thomas and staff did an excellent job in preparing for Clinton's visit. It all seemed to go off without a hitch. I know a lot of people put in long hours once Moore was notified late Thursday that the President was coming. Their effort is commendable.

· This visit was, in my opinion, was an effort to give a boost to Congresswoman Lynn Rivers campaign, more than anything else. Rivers is in a dog fight with Republican challenger Joe Fitzsimmons, and you better believe the President won her a whole slew of votes, Tuesday. It was strange to see Rivers at Clinton's side every step of the way, and Senator Levin, who is also seeking re-election, no where to be found.

· This was Clinton's third swing through these parts in the last couple of months. First he visited Taylor, then the train swing through Wyandotte, and now Westland. There is talk that if details can be worked out, a fourth stop might occur before the election to announce the ground breaking of the new terminal at the airport. Airport, or not, the Democrats are placing a lot of importance on this area — an area that once was solidly Democratic, but has eroded significantly as of late.

· The weather, which organizers prayed would cooperate for this outside event, did just that. It was 60's and sunny for the early arriving crowd. Funny, however, as people filed out of the football stadium rain came pouring down.

· Our congenial President, sure knows how to work a crowd. As he entered the Voc Tech classroom, he made sure he shook every hard in his path. And he was leaving he actually sought out students in the back of the room to shake their hands.

Fire department defended

To the editor:

As much as I hate to lower myself to respond to a letter recently printed in the Ann Arbor News "Cut duplication of fire fighting costs," I feel that it can't go unanswered.

It totally amazes me that the people that think they know everything, know nothing at all. If you could look past your ignorance, you would know that the laws that govern us, which I may add, were first written by our grandfathers, insist that we provide fire protection for all our residents. The laws also provide firefighters and other emergency responders with the safest possible equipment. Have you ever heard of Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA) and the National Fire Protection Association (NFPA)? These are governmental organizations that regulate and provide for the fire service. They set the minimum standards that the equipment must meet.

Even if we were to create a "Metro Fire Department", we would still need the equipment "toys" that we have. Fire trucks can only be in service for 25 years before the State of Michigan will no longer certify them. But you didn't know that did you? You probably didn't realize that the vast areas that the fire departments cover require the manpower and "toys" to provide you the service that is demanded by our residents. I bet you didn't know that our fire departments belong to mutual aid pacts that Keep our costs for equipment and manpower to the lowest possible level.

You probably didn't know that because of the "toys" and training in Van Buren Township, the residents pay the lowest possible fire insurance rates available. Did you know that you pay as much for street lights per year as you do for Public Safety.

Speaking of training, did you know that even a volunteer firefighter has to complete many hours of school for fire fighting, hazardous materials response, first responder, just to name a few. And the continuing education required by the state would boggle your mind.

Our communities are growing so rapidly, we can't afford not to provide our residents with the most up-to-date equipment. If you have a fire or any other emergency, would you call for a horse drawn emergency vehicle to answer your call? I don't think so!!!

So the next time you think that you know something, why don't you investigate your information a little further. It may save us all a whole lot of heart ache.

K. Dixon

Letter writer is wrong

To the editor:

I am deeply saddened by the thoughts that an individual put in (an Ann Arbor newspaper on Sunday Sept. 8). I have been a firefighter for seven years now for the city of Belleville, and have put countless hours into training for fire fighting, emergency medical response, hazardous materials incidents, extrications, and more. The other members of the department have gone through similar training and even more. Everyone puts in extra time at the fire hall as well, repairing equipment to save the city costs.

There is a special camaraderie on the fire department. Any time you go into a burning building, you go in with a partner. Your life is in their hands and their life is in yours. You have to trust them, and they have to trust you. Firefighting is not my life's work, I am a Doctor of Chiropractic. I chose to be on the fire department for community service. Living in and owning my business in the City of Belleville meant being involved. I am very proud of my accomplishments since I've moved to Belleville.

If you think firefighters are in the business to play with big toys, you are very mistaken. Every fire run and emergency first response run is taken very seriously. If the tornado sire goes off, I have to put my wife, children, and pets in the basement and leave to make sure the city is protected.

These aren't "lil boy whims to be like the big boys." Each piece of equipment we use has a special need. We aren't asking for things we want, we are asking for things we need. The fire truck we are trying to replace is a 1964 American LaFrance engine. The state will not certify the pump since it is more than twenty five years old. This truck has served the city very well, but it is time for a new one. The budget to run the fire department is probably one of the lowest in the state. The need for new equipment isn't new. The DDA is trying to save a raise in taxes by helping with the purchase of a new truck.

Grants just aren't as accessible as they once were. We have applied for various grants and have been denied due to the overall demand. We have received grants through the DNR

We are not trying to build an empire, we are trying to keep the citizens of the City of Belleville as safe as we possibly can. With a new truck and some other work, we are hoping to lower the ISO rating so that the Belleville taxpayers can get lower insurance rates. I think everyone can appreciate that.

State able to take over

To the editor:

If a liberal were to maintain that the federal government can manage food programs, breakfasts for students, and other distributions to the needy better than state and local government entities, he would at least be an honest proponent of welfare considerations even though he is misdirected and miseducated.

When state and local government entities are ready, willing, and able to perform services for people, they will always be more efficient than the federal government.

Not one liberal columnist in the four papers I read daily has put the Republican contract proposals regarding welfare programs honestly.

Each liberal writer reports that the Republicans want to eliminate food programs for the poor. The contract proposals actually will increase the money spent for the various programs to aid the needy. Republicans want to replace the federally managed programs with state block grants.

There is no intent to eliminate help for those in need.

Thanks extended

To the editor:

On behalf of Oakwood Healthcare System, I would like to thank you for your article regarding the Keep Kids Safe "Car Seat Safety" check and informing your readers of the importance of child car seats.

We believe because of your efforts, the child car seat safety check held on Aug. 15 at the Livonia Little Tots Day Care Center was a huge success! We inspected twice as many car seats on that day than we did at two locations in May.

Again, thank you for your interest, continuous support and coverage. I appreciate it and look forward to working with you in the future.

New boaters need training

To the editor:

We would appreciate your help in convincing new boaters to take a Boating Safety course.

The upcoming Boat Show will convince thousands of inexperienced persons to buy boats. These new boaters need to learn some fundamentals about safe boating. One way to get this information is through one of the many public courses available.

Three classes are now being taught by the Dearborn Power Squadron. There are, of course, other classes taught by other units of the United States Power Squadrons and by the United States Coast Guard.

Patriotic idea appears to have merit

Reflections

Joan Dyer-Zinner

During his crusade, which began with a dream in 1985, he has not asked for donations or contributions -- only signatures on his petitions.

For several years, Anthony Anthos has fought a one-man crusade to have the capitol dome lighted for special occasions.

Although he is bubbling with enthusiasm and exuberance about the project, he has not been able to infect state leaders with the same degree of excitement.

Last week, Anthos swept into my office with hurricane force to tell me about his dream to have muted shades of red, white and blue lights on the state capitol dome -- beginning on Memorial Day 2000.

It seems to be a worthy project -- one which not be prohibitive in cost -- and one which would enhance the appearance of the structure as well as serve as an appropriate salute to various groups of Michigan citizens.

Anthos envisions the dome being lighted with muted colors of the flag on the eve of holidays, thereby giving extra recognition to servicemen on the Fourth of July, working people on Labor Day, etc.

During his crusade, which began with a dream in 1985, he has not asked for donations or contributions -- only signatures on his petitions. Rejections and rebuffs have not dimmed his spirit nor diminished his determination during the past 11 years, and he looks forward to his dream becoming a reality in 2000 to "launch a new century of hope and faith."

Coincidentally, the day after Anthos visit, I read the story of another lighting crusader who suffered rebuffs and rejections for some 16 years before her illumination projects gained acceptance.

Motoka Ishii, a Japanese lighting designer, crusaded for the lighting of buildings in her home country for many years but was unable to convince civic leaders to "light up" various historic and community sites. Ishii recalled that the city father of Kyoto "stared at us with a look of frightened bewilderment" when she submitted a plan to illuminate 82 different sites in the city, ant then rejected the plan.

She set up her own business in 1968, but it was not until 1986 that her work gained widespread acceptance.

Ishii was commissioned to illuminate 12 buildings in Yokohama for its Light Up Festival. More than 800,000 visitors saw the lights during the 10-day event, and a decision was made to make the light-up a permanent display.

Among her notable projects are the illumination of Tokyo's Rainbow Bridge and its landmark radio tower which features 148 floodlights and 686 lamps, along with many other "night time cityscapes."

Anthos should take heart that, although it took many years for Motoka Ishii's dream of lights to come true, it finally became a reality -- one that hundreds of thousands of people see and enjoy every day.

Could the light-up come to Michigan? We hope so!

Editor's note: Anthony Anthos' story is related on Page A-2. Supporters of his project may show their support by writing to their state legislators.

Jackson to speak in Inkster

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
MCN Managing Editor

Preparations are being made at Inkster High School for the visit next Monday morning of the Rev. Jesse Jackson.

"We've sent out the word to the community, and we hope to fill our auditorium," said Martha Petroski, coordinator for the Helping One Student to Succeed (HOSTS) program at the high school.

Jackson is scheduled to arrive at the 1,300-seat auditorium at 9 a.m.

"While we are inviting the public, we don't want to lose sight of the fact that this is for the students," said Jim Netter of Wayne, coordinator of Jackson's current and previous visits to Western Wayne County.

Jackson's visit is part of a voter registration drive for young adults with an emphasis on citizenship and the privilege of voting.

"What I would like to see, would be the president of the Inkster High School Student Council or another outstanding student introduce Jesse Jackson," said Netter. "Jesse is here to speak to the youngsters, and I would like to see their involvement in the program, rather than the adults."

Later in the day Jackson will visit Willow Run High School, Eastern Michigan University, the University of Michigan, Oak Park High School, Oakland Community College and Wayne County Community College.

Chairman, student

Community college trustee wears 2 hats

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
MCN Managing Editor

Ted Scott is acquainted with Wayne County Community College in more than one way.

The Westland resident is the chairman of the Wayne County Community College Board of Trustees, and he is also a former student.

"When people ask me about the quality of education at WCCC, I can tell them that I took classes here and my daughter, Linda, attended WCCC," said Scott. "I feel comfortable recommending the college to prospective students because of my own experiences."

He completed his requirement for a bachelor's degree in fire technology at Madonna University, after taking many classes at WCCC.

"If you know what your goal is, you can take classes at WCCC that will transfer to a four-year institution, and save considerable money during the first two years of college," Scott said.

WCCC offers an "open door" policy which allow students who have not received a high school diploma to enroll.

Ted Scott

"The college offers educational support to help the student get up to speed," he said. "The class sizes are small, the instructors are good and I believe we have a good facility at the Western Campus."

Scott said that if he had the ability to "turn back the clock," he might have selected Westland, Inkster, Romulus or Garden City as the site for the Western Campus a dozen years ago. However, there is a growth spurt now around the two airports and in the Interstate-94 and I-275 corridors, which makes the current site an advantageous one.

Along with the industrial and commercial growth in the far western part of the county comes the need for training and re-training of individuals to fill the current job market.

"We can help businesses to train and re-train people with new technology," Scott said. "I expect to see the role of the Western Campus expanding over the coming years. There is a lot of growth in the area, and the need for educational services will expand to meet the needs."

Scott sees the college at a stable level with the board agreed on a "countywide" focus for the college.

"We have a stable board. Three of the trustees are unopposed in their bids for re-election this year," he said. "We are all working for the college as a whole -- not one area pitted against another."

In November, the college will ask the taxpayers to renew a 1 mill levy for five years to help fund the community college.

"Our millage does not expire this year, but we are asking for the renewal now so that we can plan ahead," Scott said. "It would not be fiscally responsible to wait until the millage expired before asking for more millage."

In addition, Scott noted that the community college always places its millage requests on a county-wide ballot, rather than to hold a costly special election.

"We want to put our request before the voters during the Presidential Election so that there will be a good turnout of voters," he said. "Remember, this is not a request for new money. It is a request to continue an existing millage."

When asked what he would place on his "wish list" for the college, Scott named three things:

- To never hear that there are things that our computers cannot do.
- That every student who comes to the college would be treated as the good customers that they are.
- To be on the leading edge of re-training people in industry and help to replenish entry- and mid-level jobs.

DEQ director applauds contributions to environmental quality upgrades

Michigan's environmental health is improving and the outlook for the future is bright, according to a report presented by Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ) Director, Russell Harding during a meeting of the Senate Natural Resources and Environmental Affairs Committee.

Harding pointed out three major legislative changes which have contributed significantly to the improvement in Michigan's environmental status. Those changes included: returning fairness to liability (holding only the party causing the contamination responsible), the adoption of Risk Based Corrective Action standards (prioritizing leaking underground storage tank cleanups based upon level of toxicity and rate of exposure), and instituting the environmental audit privilege (providing incentives for businesses to perform environmental audits to promptly report and correct violations).

Due to changes in the liability laws related to contaminated property, Michigan has been able to remove 197 sites, this year, from the inventory of environmental contamination. Harding said 20 of 33 municipalities surveyed have reported and increase in the redevelopment of brownfield properties, while another nine municipalities experienced increased interest as a direct result of these changes. In addition, the state realized a 70 to 80 percent savings for taxpayers, totaling $13 million, and a 50 percent reduction in site reclamation costs.

Through the use of the Risk-Based Corrective Action standards, the DEQ has a achieved closure on 1,122 leaking underground storage tank (LUST) sites in 1996. This is double the highest number of closures achieved in any year between 1991-1995, and it has been achieved without the state's MUSTFA (Michigan Underground Storage Tank Financial Assurance) program, which used to pay for such clean-ups. The costs for clean-up were reduced by 24 percent, an average savings of $39,000 per site.

Harding said the number of self audits being conducted was unknown, yet they have received feedback that common violations are being discovered and corrected, such as storage of too much solvent on-site and improper labeling of drums. Thus far, the DEQ has received two voluntary disclosures since the enactment of the legislation in March, and the department has received inquiries from others interested in voluntary disclosure.

WCCC institutes 'Principal's Pick'

For the first time in recent history, Wayne County Community College hosted a reception and issued financial assistance for incoming students under the new program Principal's Pick.

Principal's Pick allows high school principals to select students with fair grade point averages to attend the College and receive financial assistance. Those who do not qualify for federal or state financial aid receive a scholarship from Wayne County Community College.

Little Rock Baptist Church Pastor, Rev. Jim Holley, along with WCCC President Dr. Curtis L. Ivery, conceived the Principal's Pick idea earlier this year.

Dr. Ivery said, "There's a vast amount of people in Detroit who don't have access to education; We have to be active and proactive in making those opportunities come alive for them. Principal's Pick is one way to do it."

For this first time, Detroit high school principals recommended 213 students who had at least a 2.0 grade point average. Ninety-three, 34 of which are male, have accepted the award and enrolled at the College this fall.

Dog mauled to death

Smokey

A Canton resident claims Canton police have ignored his claims that his dog was mauled to death after a fight with a neighbor dog.

"It was the most gruesome sight I've seen since World War II," said Canton resident Bruce Young, a combat vet who dodged bullets at Okinawa. "My dog Smoky was scalped."

Young's dog is a 13-year-old shepherd and husky mix, a golden dog who appeared in many rock and commercial videos produced by Richard Young, Bruce's son. The dog was mauled, scalped, and blinded Sept. 7.

Unable to save the dog, a veterinarian terminated its life.

Though Young blames two small Rottweilers for the deadly attack, an investigation by Canton police exonerated the suspect dogs after viewing one.

"I could not see any signs on the animal or its collar that it was involved in a fight," wrote the officer in the police report. "(Veterinarian) Zwick said she could not say positively that it was a dog attack."

This absolution infuriated Young, who accuses the officer of failing to enforce Canton's animal control ordinance, which empowers the township's animal control officer to confine "vicious dogs." The ordinance defines a vicious dog as "any dog that attacks a human being or any other animal."

Though he has no proof, Young suspects the Rottweilers, who live on Michigan Avenue, next door to Talent Live Recording, a studio owned by Young, his wife Elsie, and Richard. He suspects them because several people said the dogs escaped from their cage and roamed Young's property Friday.

Joe Prigun, who works at the studio, said: "The dogs know how to get out of their cage. They constantly run free. They were here all day Friday. Growling, they went after a new guy. They came after me, but I blocked them by throwing the front gate in their way."

Young last saw his dog in one piece at 11:10 a.m., Saturday morning. Young left Smoky outside looking at woodchucks while Young ate breakfast. During the meal, Elsie saw Smoky and the Rottweilers on opposite sides of the boundary fence.

Young finished breakfast at 11:20 a.m., went outside and heard growling and rustling sounds on his property.

Young buried Smoky in the backyard. But he hasn't forgiven the police for dismissing his allegations.

"They haven't heard the last of this," he said.

Glidden auto tour revived

Lined up decade by decade, 300 vintage automobiles will parade down Woodward Avenue as part of the 10th anniversary of the Detroit Festival of the Arts and a salute to the 100th anniversary of the automobile.

The Glidden/Chrome Glidden Tour begins at 11 a.m. between Warren Avenue and Ferry Street in Detroit's Cultural Center.

In 1946, the Revival Glidden Tour was a part of Detroit's Golden Jubilee, celebrating the 50th anniversary of the automobile and Woodward Avenue was painted gold in honor of the celebration.

The owner of the car that drove the longest distance to arrive in Detroit for the 1946 Parade – a 1904 Oldsmobile from New Jersey – won a golden colored 1946 Hudson for the effort. That same golden Hudson will be one of the 300 cars expected to parade down Woodward Avenue on Saturday.

Dance has all the popularity of The Hustle, but less work

By KIMBERLY WOLOSKIE
MCN Staff Writer

> It's definitely along the same lines as the Hustle, but it requires less space to perform...
> - Thomas Poole

Hey, M-A-C-A-R-E-N-A!

A craze that has virtually swept the nation from their seats and into a massive, arm-waving, hip-shaking, flamenco-style dance that leaves only your shyest toe tappers behind.

New to the United States since last fall, the Macarena originated years before with a chart topper by the Spanish two-some Los Del Rio. It's overwhelming popularity has since followed with a re-mix version by the quartet, Bayside Boys, who reached number one recently on Billboard's Hot 100 Singles Chart.

The revitalization of the song has led to outbreaks at weddings, dance bars, the Oprah Winfrey Show, the Democratic National Convention in California and has taken over the seventh inning stretch of our national pastime, baseball.

With so much commotion over a few simple hand movements capped off with three hip shimmy's, one has to wonder why this dance has become so popular?

"For the simple fact that it's so easy to do," said Susie Roy, of Susie's Dance Pointe in Westland. "Even if you don't know how to dance, the Macarena appeals to everyone because there's not that much to learn."

The Westland dance instructor says her students find the Macarena appealing because, as with other dances of that nature, it's a lot of fun to do with a group or large crowd.

Brides and grooms across the nation are leading the movement with request after request for the Spanish dance surpassing the appeal of the Hokey Pokey, Chicken Dance and the Hustle.

"I'd have to say 98 percent of the time I get more than one request for the Macarena," said Thomas Poole, owner of Thomas & Thomas disc jockey services of Canton. "I think you'll see a cross-over within the next few years where the Macarena will be a song some brides and grooms ask 'not' to be played."

Poole believes the dance is popular because it's easy to learn and, like The Wave, individuals enjoy crowd participation opportunities.

"It's definitely along the same lines as the Hustle, but it requires less space to perform and is only about 3 minutes and 20 seconds in length, so I tend to play the two songs back-to-back and replay the Macarena later on in the evening to bring people back out on the dance floor," said Poole. "It puts light on those people that don't know how to do it."

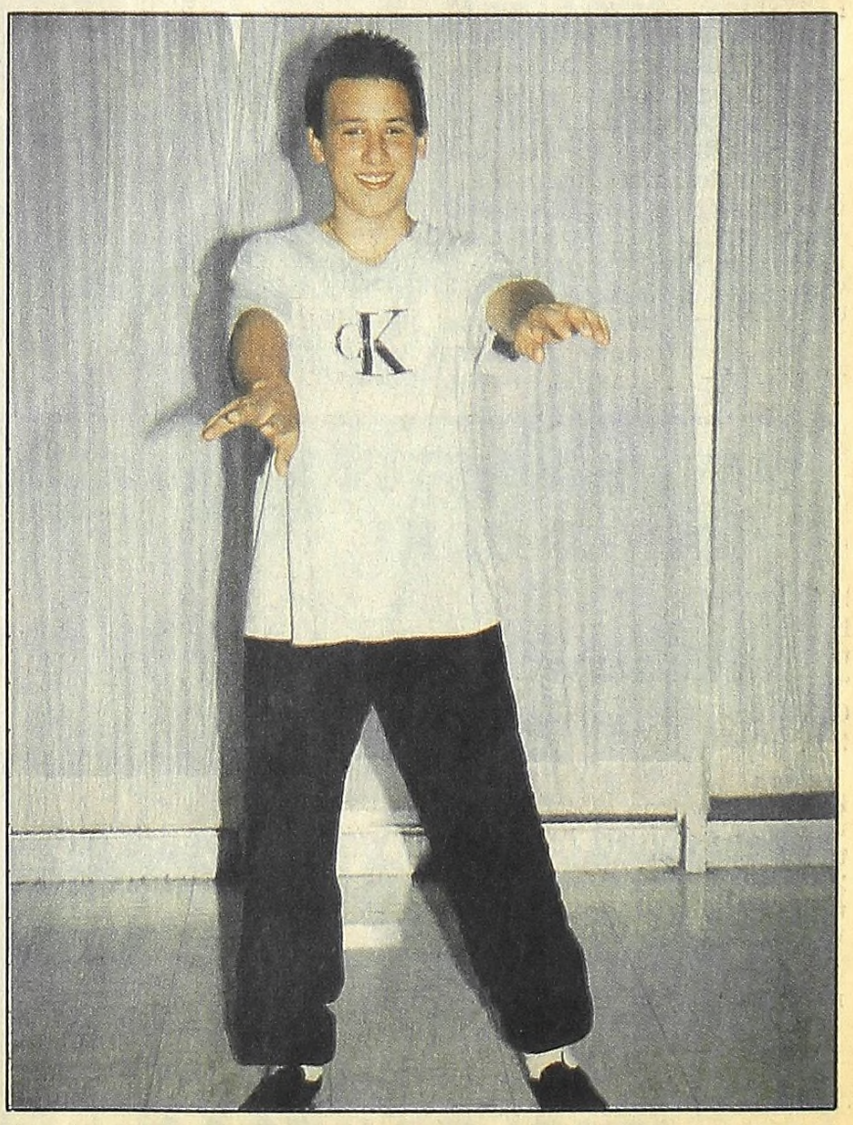
The attraction to the dance and the song, about a young girl named Macarena who leaves her boyfriend, Vetorino, for the attentions of someone more interesting, crosses the cultural, racial, gender and age gap as dancers range from small tots to people well passed their teen years.

"I like the Macarena because everyone can do it," said 11-year-old Trista Phenix. "My favorite part is when you swing your hips."

The next time you're swept up in a crowd throwing your hands behind your head and around your hips you might want to ask yourself - what's next.

According to a local dee jay, a song and dance titled The Train is making its way into the hearts and on the dance floors of local bars and parties across the country.

So remember, whether you're riding The Train or doing the Macarena, just have fun!



This dancer starts by extending his arms and placing his palms up, one after the other.MCN photo by Kimberly Woloskie

'Hellish' second-half saves John Glenn, Salem

Rockets rally by Western

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Staff Writer

It looked easy. Too easy.

Glenn's David Jarrett leaped on a Walled Lake Western fumble on the visitor's first play of their Western Lakes Conference showdown and the Rockets were on the scoreboard 6-0.

Steve Paling booted the extra point, and it was 7-0 Glenn.

But then...

Western came back and gave Coach Chuck Gordon, his Rockets and a Glenn Parents' Night crowd estimated at 3,000 a run for their money before the Westlanders pulled out a 28-17 victory.

But before the half ended, the eighth-ranked state Class AA power had a 17-14 lead.

Those 17 points were all that Western managed to score against a Glenn defense that played a near flawless second half.

"This was a very tough and hard-fought game," said Gordon as he prepares his Rockets for Livonia Stevenson, the defending divisional champ. "It is also a huge victory for us."

Of Stevenson, Gordon commented that he expects to see another hard- fought battle.

"They won the division a year ago and many of those players who did it are back with this team."

After scoring the first touchdown of the game in the first minute of the game by leaping on a loose ball in the Walled Lake Western end zone, Westland John Glenn's David Jarrett (32) came back in the third quarter and broke loose for a 59-yard touchdown run (photo, at right) that lifted the Rockets into the lead for good and helped soothe the concerns of a large Glenn Parents' Night audience. The Rockets, ranked fifth in the latest Class AA state polls, celebrate the 28-17 victory over the tough eighth-ranked Western opponent (photo below) and will attempt to stretch their modest two-game winning streak when they take on Livonia Stevenson, the defending Lakes Division champ. Rocks avert an historic repeat, 17-14

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Staff Writer

There just may be something to that adage about those who ignore history.

Though he didn't say so, Plymouth-Salem coach Tom Moshimer must have felt history was about to repeat Friday night as his Rocks sputtered, faltered, and fumbled their way out of a first half against a Northville team that battered them a year ago 31-0 and had built up a 14-0 lead before the Rocks decided it was time to redeem.

Only after the first-half scare did Salem take control of their own destiny and pull out a close 17-14 decision that evened the score for last year's debacle.

"We forgot we were here to play football," said Moshimer, whose Rocks are off to a 2-0 start. "For a couple of quarters, I thought I was looking at a rerun of last year's game. We fumbled and they scored. They tried an onside kick. And recovered the ball.

"Do you know we were down 14-0 before we decided it was time to play ball?"

Yes, coach, we did.

Held scoreless the first half, the Rocks and Salem senior quarterback Nate Gray caught fire in the stretch. Gray combined with receiver Mike Rodriguez on a 73-yard pass-

Tackle's TD does it

Defense gives Romulus first victory

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Staff Writer

While its offense continues to travel through the transformation capsule, Romulus' defense appears to have arrived.

And just in the nick of time.

Defensive tackle Chris Huggins grabbed an in-flight ball, put in orbit by teammate Brian Titus' hit in the closing minutes of the second quarter on Woodhaven quarterback Rob Elsyick.

The 6-5, 240-pound Huggins wrestled the ball from the air, then ran it back 35 yards into the Warriors end zone for the game's first and what proved to be the Eagles' only TD of the game.

Shortly afterwards, Titus scored the two-point conversion with an off- tackle play which proved to be the difference in the 8-6 Mega Conference, Red Division opener for both teams.

"We definitely needed a win," said Romulus coach Mark Woodson, whose club lost its season's crossover opener a week ago to Taylor Truman, 20-0. "We owe this (victory) to our defense. They played an exceptional game."

Romulus will have trouble building on its victory. The Eagles face a frustrated Fordson next. The Tractors, ranked near the top of the state polls before the season, fell to Monroe 33-12 as Monroe's 6-4, 245-pound senior fullback Jovan Johnson put on a one-man scoring show. He tallied four TDs in the Trojans' second win.

> We owe this victory to our defense. They played an exceptional game.
> - Mark Woodson

Fordson will host the Eagles at 1:30 p.m. on Saturday. This is a "take-no-hostages" kind of clash.

Woodson also knows he and his club will have to work overtime to generate some offense in order to stay on the same field with the heavily-favored Tractors.

"They (Fordson) are coming off of a tough

Inkster fails to capitalize on 4 Benedictine turnovers

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Staff Writer

Frustrated in its inability to capitalize on four big Benedictine turnovers that led to their second straight setback on Friday, Inkster and coach Glenn Free will turn their attentions on another Catholic League power, Bishop Borgess, in hopes of pulling out of their football doldrums.

"We had the opportunities in this one," said Free, after the Vikings dropped a 26-6 decision to the visiting Ravens. "When a team coughs up the ball not once but four times deep in their territory you're supposed to cash them in for TDs.

"We didn't and that's what cost us a victory."

Free and the Vikings will now have to dig themselves out of a 0-2 hole at the expense of Borgess. But don't bet on it. Borgess is tough, according to the Viking staff.

The two will clash Saturday night at Garden City Junior High School, located on Wildwood, between Ford Road and Cherry Hill.

Free says that he and his staff had not had the opportunity to scout Borgess this year, but he stressed the Redford Township high school "has an excellent football program and tradition."

"We better be ready to play a tough and physical game," he added.

In Friday's home opener, Inkster struck first against the Ravens as quarterback Ridel Roundtree engineered a midfield drive that culminated in a 10-yard TD pass to flanker Ken Overman and gave the hosts a brief 6-0 lead.

The Vikings opted to use the same pass play for the two-point conversion, but the play didn't

Brooks runs 3rd at Holly

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Staff Writer

Marjorie Brooks, the area's premier women's distance runner, turned in a superlative performance on a rained-drenched course on Saturday to finish third at the 110-team Holly Cross Country Invitational.

Brooks turned in a 20:13 effort for her bronze medal. She trailed invitational winner Emily Magner and runner-up Megan Osborn across the finish line.

Magner, a senior at Ann Arbor Pioneer, covered the five kilometers (3.1 mile) course in the winning time of 20:05. She "nosed out" Brighton's Megan Osborn, who finished in 20:06 for the gold.

Brooks didn't have a supporting cast. The Westlanders next finisher, Kelly Fradette, turned up 106th with a run of 25:00. The Rockets also counted the performances of Wendy Coughenour, who was 108th (25:32) and Kim Lawrence, who was 117th.

In the meantime, Glenn men's team finished 11th in the 22-team, Division-5. (The 110 teams were divided into five divisions, according to their school sizes). The Rockets garnered 264 points and in 11th place in their division, with Brighton, Rockford and Jackson runners finishing first, second and third, respectively.

> Our kids ran against some of the best talent in the state and fared well.
> - Jess Shough

Senior Joe Wojtowicz led the Rockets. His 17:42 run was the 16th overall best performance in the division, and the effort also earned him a medal. Medals were presented to the top 35 runners in each of the divisions.

Glenn also was 41st with Paul Gabraith, who toured the 3.1 miles in 18:35, while teammate Justin Keyes and his brother Josh were 60th (18:31) and 70th (19:14) and P. J. Wolocko was 77th (19:31).

The Rockets also ran Kevin Durigan, who finished 100th (20:37) and Jim Koch (20:42).

Glenn coach Jess Shough said he felt that his runners did a "good job considering the competition they face."

"Our kids ran against some of the best talent in the state and fared well," said Shough, who also stressed that the course was in bad shape due to the Saturday's rains.

"The fifth division was the last division to get off, so the course was really muddied and sloppy. Under those conditions and the competition we faced, I felt these kids came out pretty good."

Earlier in the week, Glenn managed to turn back its nemesis, Northville, in a crossover Western Lakes Conference dual meet. The Rockets, again with Wojtowicz and Gabraith, setting the pace tamed the Colts, 22-33. Wojtowicz had a 17:12 run and Gabraith's third-place finish was clocked at 18:04. The Rockets also counted the scores of Justin Keyes, who was fifth (18:14) and Josh Keyes, who ran sixth in 18:56. P. J. was seventh in 19:02.

Joe Wojtowicz

"This is the first time in four years that we have come out of this meet the winner," Shough noted. "It feels good."

The Rockets will test its lineup against one of the better CC teams in the conference today at 3:30 when they take on Plymouth Canton at Cass Benton Park.

At the Ypsilanti Invitational, six of the seven Rocket runners earned medalist honors as Glenn won the team trophy. Wojtowicz also was the No. 1 runner as he ran a 17:47.

Without star, Glenn continues to shine

By LORI GILLESPIE
MCN Staff Writer

Glenn's loss is Stevenson's gain.

Under Schools of Choice, swimmer Adrienne Turri transferred from Westland John Glenn to Livonia Stevenson. She established residency in Livonia, and is now a member of an already powerful team.

"We wished her well when we found out," said Rockets swim coach Ron Staple. "If she's on their team, they're going to be tough."

So far this season, John Glenn is 1-2, and the main goal is to improve. "Our overall team goal is to get better each week," Staple said. "We also have individual goals we have set, and at the end of the season, we'll check and see if they have been met. It's going to be tough to compete in this league (Western Lakes Conference), but we'll do our best."

Kristen Stone has been selected as captain for the John Glenn team which has a number of promising freshmen, according to Staple. "Our basic goal is to take it to the next level," he said. "We need to get the girls in club swimming. We have three or four girls in it now. We want to get them swimming year-round."

Along with Stone, who is a returning state qualifier, the Rockets have a good diving team in Jennifer Down and Jennifer Marchand, who has three victories this year. If she registers two more wins, Marchand will qualify for the regionals.

The coach said the strength of the team lies in their diving, freestyle and sprinting events. "The girls are dedicated to keep working hard every day to develop more strength. We're teaching a lot of them how to swim, and we're encouraging them to join the Wayne Dolphins (a swim club)," Staple said.

Out of the water, the team is beginning to bond. "They have really come together as a group," Staple said. "They're planning on going horseback riding together this weekend. We have a good group of girls."

Plymouth-Salem dunks Brighton, to meet natural rival, Canton

By LORI GILLESPIE
MCN Staff Writer

Plymouth Salem's girls swim team is mapping out their strategy for success this year.

After finishing last year in third place in the Western Lakes Athletic Association, Salem has set their sites on at least second place for this season.

Out of 11 teams in the conference meet last week, Salem finished only behind Livonia Stevenson. And, in their first dual meet of the season, the Rocks sank Brighton, 104-81.

In this meet, Salem's Yvonne Lynn qualified for the state meet for the 100 yard backstroke. The 400 freestyle relay team, composed of Lynn, Audrey Hala, Kelly Ann Williams, and Carrie Dzialo, also qualified to compete at the state meet. Their qualifying time, 4:48.78, was only .05 over the state record.

Assistant coach Bill Faunce believes Salem has a "pretty solid team."

Faunce said the team, which is coached by Chuck Olson, is better balance than last year. "We have a lot of ex-swimmers coming back. We lost a couple, but we can always fill them in," Faunce explained, adding that there are 62 girls on the team this year. "It's a three ring circus here. We have some girls in the pool, and others are in the weight room."

Co-captains for the team are seniors Lynn, Williams, and Katie Collins, who is a four-year swimmer for Salem.

"Diving is probably our weakest area," Faunce said. "Michelle Wallon, a junior, is leading our divers She wasn't a full-time diver last year, we used her as a back-up. She has improved for this year so far."

Two swimmers who have impressed the assistant coach are Jessica Hala and Sara Rogers, freshmen who are on the varsity team.

"We have a lot of freestyle depth," Faunce explained. "Our swimmers are very versatile. They do the freestyle, backstroke and the butterfly equally as well. Our two strengths are versatility and depth."

The goals for this year are to be second in the conference and to place all three relay teams in the state meet, with top 12 finishes in at least one.

Tonight, arch rivals go nose to nose, as Salem meets up with Canton, who came in third at the relay meet. The two teams were only separated by six points at the end of the meet. Faunce said, "We're looking forward to this. For the girls, winning this means bragging rights for the whole year."

Salem on winning track

By LORI GILLESPIE
MCN Staff Writer

Plymouth Salem girls cross country coach Dave Gerlach has his team running on the right path to achieve their ultimate goal of finishing in the top three in the Western Lakes Athletic Association.

Out of 31 teams, the Rocks finished eighth at the West Bloomfield Invitational. However, they fell to arch rival Plymouth Canton, 29-26, in their only dual meet so far this year.

"As a whole, we are better depth wise," Gerlach said, comparing his team to their predecessor. "Our varsity is the same as last year, talent wise."

Returning this year as co-captains are seniors Nicole Bolton and Kristie Giddings. "Both captains are returning in great shape, and are running well at this time," the coach said. "Truly being team leaders, they help me out a lot." Gerlach said Bolton, who was injured the latter part of last season, and Giddings set an example for the other girls by working hard in practice and in the weight room. He said they also answer questions for their teammates, and work at getting the Rocks ready before the meets.

Some standouts on this team of 30 girls are, junior Evelyn Rahall, junior Ellen Stemmer, senior Sarah Pratt, junior Erin Lang, senior Vanessa Bodnar, senior Mari Disbrow, senior Kathy Jost.

"We have a lot of young athletes," Gerlach said. "We expect them to really come on at the end of the season. We have five freshmen who are under 25 minutes, and we're really excited about that."

The coach is enthusiastically looking forward to the rest of the season. "This should be a fun, competitive year, but we will probably be in the toughest league and regionals," Gerlach commented. "We're going to try to make it to State as a team, or send at least four there, individually. We want to be in the top two in the conference, we finished number three last year. But, with Livonia Stevenson, who finished second in the state, and Farmington, who finished fifth, it's going to be tough."

Rockets

Now back to Western and Parents' Night.

Pat Gibson put Western on the scoreboard midway in the first quarter after a Western drive died. With 1:26 left, Gibson put the ball through the uprights from 44 yards out to make it a 7-3 ball game.

The visitors shocked the Rockets in their next series when running back David Johnson ended a midfield drive with a three-yard TD run and Gibson kicked the extra point to put the visitors in the lead 10-7.

Then, it was Glenn's turn and the Rockets responded with a 68-yard drive, engineered by quarterback Justin Berent who gave the ball to running back Reggie Spearmon at the 23 and the speedy ball carrier broke through for the TD. Paling's PAT gave the Rockets the lead, 14- 10.

It was short-lived as Western came right back with the kickoff and Kevin Thomas who put on a dazzling display of open field running. He scored on an incredible 94-yard run that lifted them to a 17-14 lead.

And they weren't finished, yet.

After a turnover, Western again gained possession and Gibson was given the opportunity to widen the lead. He attempted a 25-yard field goal which was blocked by the middle of the Rockets' line.

Whatever Gordon and his staff told their team at halftime, it worked. Glenn came back after the intermission and scored with 9:45 into the third quarter as Jarrett turned a reverse into an exciting 59-yard TD run. Sure-footed Paling kicked the extra point and the Rockets were on their way to their second victory with a 21-17 lead.

Defense, the kind played by end Nick Neshiewat, who, during the course of the evening, blocked a punt, recovered a fumble and also checked in with a pair of sacks of the QB, kept Western's offense frustrated the rest of the way.

Glenn scored an insurance TD with 8:45 left, set up by an excellent defensive maneuver, as tight end Jason Crofton came up with a 14- yarder, again on a reverse. Paling nailed the extra point.

What set up Glenn's final TD was Neshiewat's alert play. He forced Gibson, back to punt, out of the pocket and Ira Bargon nailed the punter inside the Western 30.

Spearmon continued to show signs that he is one of the best running backs in the area. He amassed 118 yards against the state-ranked team, using 23 rushes to do so. He also scored a TD.

Berent went to the air nine times.

run play that put the Rocks on the scoreboard for six midway in the third quarter.

Then, Brian James kicked his first of two point-afters and turned it into a 14-7 game.

The Rocks came back in the fourth with 10 points that sealed their second victory. Gray polished off a sustained drive that ended with a six-yard QB keeper and James' second successful PAT tied the game at 14-all.

James's 18-yard field goal proved to be the difference in the outcome of the Western Lakes Conference match up.

After the game, Moshimer said that he felt he and the team "were very fortunate to win."

"We dominated the fourth quarter," said the veteran Salem coach. "If we are to continue to win, we need to be more consistent. I know we can do it."

Gray made four of his 10 passes, for 109 of the Rocks' total 323 yards. The Colts compiled 355 yards but only 35 of those were from their passing (3 of 10) game.

Salem's Matt Johnson accounted for 69 yards on 19 attempts, but most of that yardage came in the fourth.

loss to Monroe," said Woodson. "Believe me, they are going to try to prove a point."

Woodson said he is hoping to see much improved play from quarterback Matt Martin, who has stepped into the slot after the Eagles' first two choices were sidelined, one leaving the state.

"Matt is smart and is improving, but he lacks game experience," said Woodson. "When he gets the necessary playing time, he is going to be tough."

Woodhaven averted the shutout in the closing minutes of the game when Elsyick completed a 20-yard TD toss.

The Warriors went for the tie, but Elsyick's attempt to roll out of the pocket and was interrupted by Romulus cornerback Jamal Prince who nailed the QB behind the line of scrimmage.

The Eagles received a sterling performance from its defense, led by tackle Tyrone Lipford, who had five tackles, including a solo, and sophomore outside linebacker, Brandon Moss, who intercepted one pass, deflected another and was credited with three unassisted tackles. Linebacker Eddie Woods also stood out for Romulus.

Vikings

materialize.

Benedictine, held scoreless the first quarter, came back and put eight points on the board after the ensuing kickoff. The Ravens went up 8-6 with the two-point conversion.

The Vikings, specifically Jonathan Brewer, stunned the Ravens with the second-half kickoff return. The speedy back faked to the left, after catching the ball, and then raced down the middle and bolted 65 yards to the Ravens' 30 before he was stopped. However, Roundtree couldn't find the right combination to do further damage as the Vikings surrendered the ball on downs.

In that second half, the Ravens obliged by committing four big turnovers, but again the Inkster offense, neutralized by a tightened Raven defense, failed to capitalize.

"We had people playing out of positions," said Free who did not elaborate. "Because of that, and because we couldn't contain their counter and passing attack, we paid."

Spikers, attention

The Westland Youth Athletic Association is continuing to register girls for its volleyball leagues.

Prospective players may sign up from noon to 2 p.m. Sept. 21 at the WYAA Lange Building. The building is located at 6050 Farmington Road.

Players should be in the 10-12 age group or the 13-16 group to qualify for this year's programs, WYAA officials stressed.

Sporty Eclipse is fun for motorists

By KAREN STRONSKI
MCN Automotive Writer

There are many reasons why you should put the 1996 Mitsubishi Eclipse GSX high on your shopping list.

For value conscious consumers like myself, looking for a fun-to-drive sporty car, consider the bold styling of a vehicle with excellent performance and handling. This car offers new high-tech comfort and security features, along with customer-pleasing exterior and interior enhancements.

The Eclipse has exhilarating performance and alluring style at an affordable price (arroximately $24,000). The 1996 is the ultimate Eclipse model and actually may be the ultimate sports coupe. With its 210-horsepower turbocharged, intercooled, double overhead camshaft 16 valve engine that revs freely. It also has full-time all wheel drive which grips the road firmly, even on hair-pin turns. The anti-lock braking system brings this vehicle to a decisive halt.

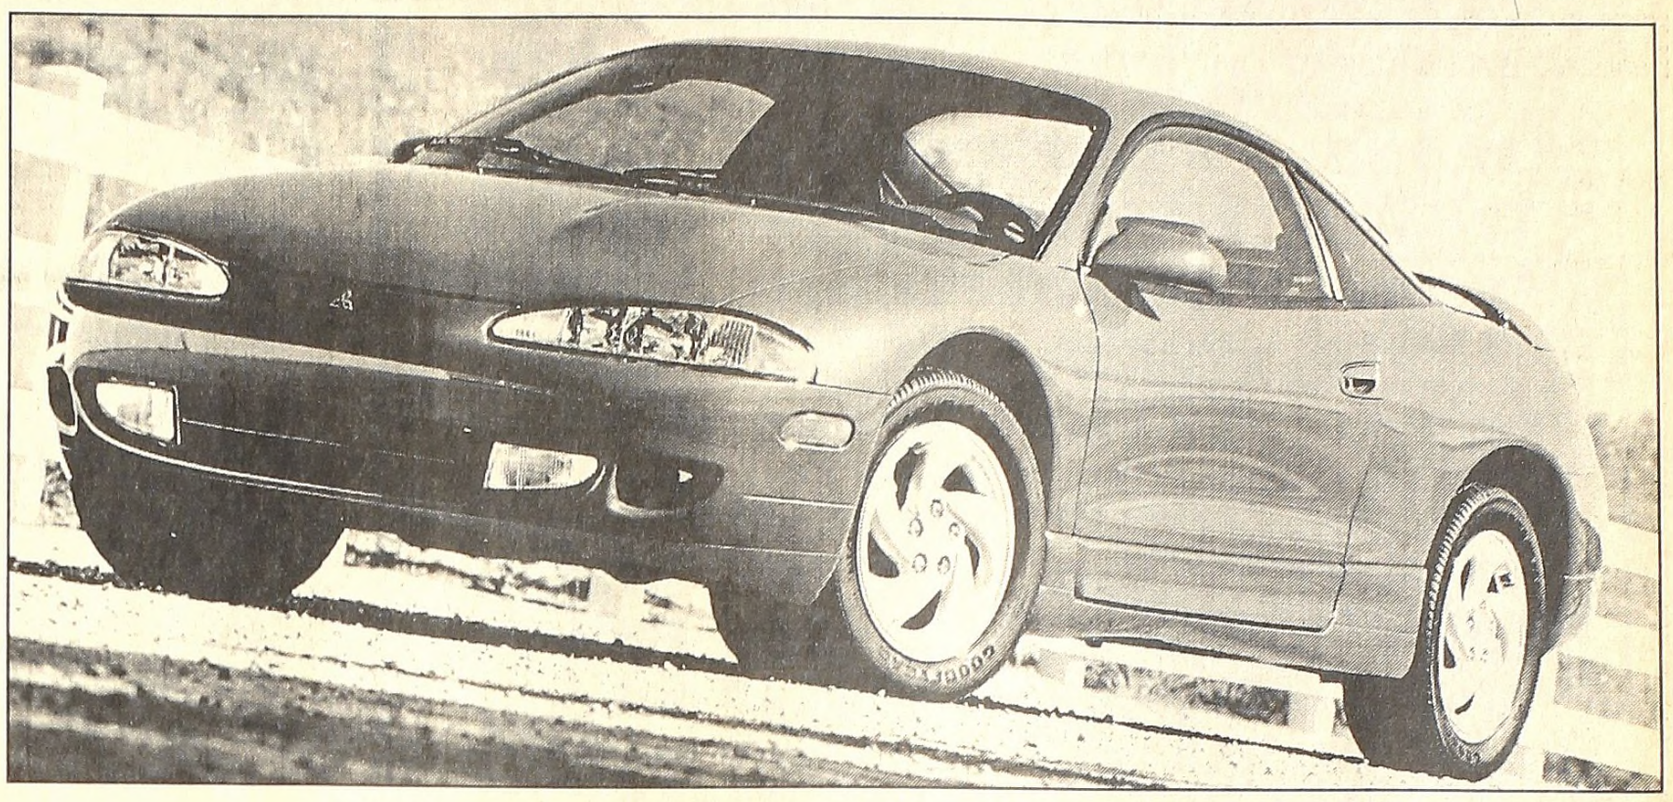
New for '96, the features on the GSX include the Mitsubishi Homelink System which enables the driver to control as many as three radio frequency devices (such as garage door opener, home security system, and an available home lighting system). A new premium stereo with optional 10-disc CD autochanger is an added bonus. The stereo in this sub-compact was wonderful. The sound quality was crisp and clear, as if you were at a concert hall. That's because the Mitsubishi has the Infinity stereo system which includes 8 speakers.

Some of the standard features on the '96 Mitsubishi Eclipse GSX are driver and front passenger side air bags, full leather seating areas on the front seats, with power driver's seat, power windows and locks, integrated fog lamps, and 16 inch alloy wheels. It also comes in a vast array of eye catching colors. With three new colors added to the list (Oslo green pearl, Celtic blue pearl, and monarch green pearl).

The Eclipse is rated at 21 miles per gallon in the city and 27 miles per gallon highway. These numbers are quite impressive considering that this car propels itself with more than 200 horsepower. This car will surprise you with its power because it comes on suddenly when your not expecting it. That's due to the turbo lag. It is so fast when shifting gears it almost feels like you are being shot out of a rocket. The close ratio five speed with overdrive, shifts very crisply with the gear selection being very accurate.

The interior of the car and especially the cockpit are well laid out. All the controls are within your reach accept the switches for the cruise control and the power mirror adjustments are not visible when driving. You actually have to look around the steering column to find them, and that could be very hazardous to ones driving ability since you have to take your eyes off the road to do so. There is plenty of room for the drivers and front passengers comfort, however if you think for one moment that a person is going to fit in a comfortable manner in the rear seat, forget about it. Its just not going to happen. Also, the rear spoiler needs to be smaller or moved do to the fact it blocks rearward vision.

So, why should one consider the 1996 Mitsubishi Eclipse GSX? That's an easy question to answer because performance, handling, and ride are no doubt key elements to a sports coupe enthusiast. But, perhaps just as important an element is driver comfort, which includes seating aesthetics and a nice cabin environment.



Eclipse GSX

The Eclipse has exhilarating performance and alluring style at an affordable price (approximately $24,000).
